Pajamas TV Announces New Summer Lineup Featuring Conservative Comic Steven Crowder

LOS ANGELES – Pajamas TV today launched a new summer lineup featuring conservative comic and YouTube sensation Steven Crowder.

“Steven Crowder's appearance on PJTV is yet another sign of one of the fascinating reversals of our time,” said Roger L. Simon, CEO of Pajamas Media and Pajamas TV. “The new hip comedy is conservative, not liberal!”

New York City-based Crowder launched his stand-up career as the youngest comic to perform at Montreal's Just for Laughs Comedy Festival and by winning the 2006 National MySpace Comedy Contest with his unique, bare-bones social commentary style.

You can see Crowder's premiere PJTV video here:

Crowder's special segments will join PJTV's weekly scheduled shows “Afterburner” with Bill Whittle, “Hugh News” with Hugh Hewitt, “Instavision” with Instapundit Glenn Reynolds, continuing tea party coverage and a fresh, informative, entertaining lineup including:

- “PJTV Grill,” where conservative comics including Crowder, Al Sonja Schmidt, and AlfonZo Rachel take on the hitmen of the liberal media.
- “ZoNation,” where AlfonZo Rachel's ZoBama character addresses issues of the day.
- “Sharia & Jihad,” which covers the global impact of political and militant Islam.
- “Klavan On Culture,” featuring author Andrew Klavan's social commentary.
- “Poliwood,” an exploration of Hollywood politics and culture featuring special guests and movie reviews.
- “Powerline Report,” a legal look at the political news of the day.
- “Talking Through My Hat,” where PJTV CEO Roger L. Simon does just that.
